

THE HONORARY SAILORS WHO DIED IN HAVANA HARBOR

ARMY AND NAVY UNION IN CHARGE OF PROGRAM

Principal Address by Representative Kahn of California—Flowers strewn on Potomac River.

The memory of the sailors who went down in Havana harbor when the battleship Maine was sunk, February 15, 1898, was honored this afternoon at the eighth annual Maine memorial services under the auspices of the Army and Navy Union. Participating in the exercises, which were held in the riding hall at Fort Myer, were representatives of the Army and Navy Union, the Grand Army of the Republic, the United Spanish War Veterans and the Woman's Relief Corps. Representatives of the naval and military establishments of the United States as well as other departments of the government, civic organizations and members of the Latin American diplomatic corps also participated in the exercises.

Following the opening by the 5th Cavalry Band, from Fort Myer, the exercises were presided over by Col. John McElroy, chairman of the executive committee. The invocation was delivered by Father Timothy O'Keefe, chaplain of the 5th Cavalry. A color guard of the 5th Cavalry presented the colors, which the audience sang while the band played "The Star Spangled Banner" and a section of the 3d and 5th Cavalry regiments rendered a national salute of twenty-one guns.

Program of Exercises.
A short address by Col. McElroy, in which he described the event in memory of which the services were held, was followed by the reading of a memorial address of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary of Cuba to the United States. This address was read by E. W. Walter Mitchell, the Cuban minister, speaking as the direct representative of the Cuban government.

Not to be overlooked in the program was the reading of the letter of the destruction of the Maine and touched briefly on the epoch-making events which followed the sinking of the battleship. The letter was read by the Cuban minister, speaking as the direct representative of the Cuban government.

Tribute to Martyr Dead.
Department Commander H. C. Wilson, United Spanish War Veterans, addressed the audience that so long as comrades of the Spanish war survive the martyred heroes of the Maine will be remembered.

"The day we here commemorate," he said, "is one that marked an epoch in the history of our land and in the history of the world. The memories we now recall are those of heroes fallen; the memories we now cherish are those of a nation's debt to the memory of the men who went down with the United States battleship, Maine, on the night of February 15, 1898, as these exercises held."

Plea for National Defense.
In the principal address of the day Representative Julius Kahn of California voiced a plea for preparedness for war as the surest means of insuring peace.

"A nation, after all, is but a mighty aggregation of individuals," he declared, "and all the failings, all the shortcomings, all the mistakes of the individual are simply multiplied and accentuated in the national life."

"When municipalities shall be able to disband their police forces by reason of the suppression of crime shall no longer require the expenditure of large sums of the taxpayer's money for the protection of their lives and property of peaceful, law-abiding citizens, then, and not until then, will the nation be able to afford the luxury of a complete disarmament of their land and naval forces."

Representative Kahn urged as a patriotic duty that the United States shall be kept in a constant state of readiness for war. He said that the United States should be kept in a constant state of readiness for war. He said that the United States should be kept in a constant state of readiness for war.

Dangerous Elements Cited.
"To my mind," he said, "the two most dangerous elements against our peace and well being today are those well-meaning but utterly mistaken citizens who bombastic utterances as to our military prowess have a tendency to lead our people into a false sense of security, and those others who delude themselves with the comforting belief that the millennium has already dawned. To assert that disarmament will bring peace, and that when we have abolished our army and dismantled our navy we shall be in no danger of possible attack, is to become totally deaf to the teachings of history; to the lessons of nature itself."

"We should always be slow to enter into a quarrel with any nation. We should never be the aggressors. But if we shall be attacked by any power on earth we must be ready, and able to defend our hearths, our homes and our country against the emboldened invader. And we can only make an effective defense in safeguarding all that we hold most dear by following the sage advice, based upon personal experience, of our first great President, George Washington: 'In time of peace prepare for war.'"

AMONG THE CLUBS

SHORT STORY CLUB.

The W. C. T. U. parlors were taxed to capacity last Tuesday evening when the program of the Short Story Club, in charge of Judge Dow McLean, was especially good.

J. L. Money gave the story of the evening, depicting the disillusion which only a financial success brings "At the End of the Road."

Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, in chapter No. 3 of the club's serial story, added to the complications of the plot; and the recording secretary, Mrs. Metcalf, sketched the comical side of a Washington woman's experience with the typical "expert" workman in his "Hanging of a Fire Escape."

Flowers strewn upon the water. Preceding the exercises in the riding hall at Fort Myer the District fireboat, firefrighter, serving as a flower boat, proceeded up the Potomac to Aqueduct bridge, bearing members of the District of Columbia Naval Militia and a flower committee composed of members of the executive committee of the United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliary.

At 2 o'clock the boat steamed down the river, while the members of the committee strewn flowers upon the water in honor of the memory of those Maine sailors whose bodies were not recovered. The committee was composed of the following: Miss Belva Blanch Laughlin, chairman; Misses Freta K. Jewell, Orville H. Dorey, Walton, Madeline Carr, Edna Greenwell, Lydia Meisel, Frances Gutelius, Albert Nichols and Helen Knox.

The flag that was flown at the peak of the flower boat was one that was carried by a ship of Admiral Farragut's fleet at the battle of Mobile Bay.

Program of Exercises.
A short address by Col. McElroy, in which he described the event in memory of which the services were held, was followed by the reading of a memorial address of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary of Cuba to the United States.

Not to be overlooked in the program was the reading of the letter of the destruction of the Maine and touched briefly on the epoch-making events which followed the sinking of the battleship. The letter was read by the Cuban minister, speaking as the direct representative of the Cuban government.

Tribute to Martyr Dead.
Department Commander H. C. Wilson, United Spanish War Veterans, addressed the audience that so long as comrades of the Spanish war survive the martyred heroes of the Maine will be remembered.

"The day we here commemorate," he said, "is one that marked an epoch in the history of our land and in the history of the world. The memories we now recall are those of heroes fallen; the memories we now cherish are those of a nation's debt to the memory of the men who went down with the United States battleship, Maine, on the night of February 15, 1898, as these exercises held."

Plea for National Defense.
In the principal address of the day Representative Julius Kahn of California voiced a plea for preparedness for war as the surest means of insuring peace.

"A nation, after all, is but a mighty aggregation of individuals," he declared, "and all the failings, all the shortcomings, all the mistakes of the individual are simply multiplied and accentuated in the national life."

AMONG THE CLUBS

SHORT STORY CLUB.

The W. C. T. U. parlors were taxed to capacity last Tuesday evening when the program of the Short Story Club, in charge of Judge Dow McLean, was especially good.

J. L. Money gave the story of the evening, depicting the disillusion which only a financial success brings "At the End of the Road."

Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, in chapter No. 3 of the club's serial story, added to the complications of the plot; and the recording secretary, Mrs. Metcalf, sketched the comical side of a Washington woman's experience with the typical "expert" workman in his "Hanging of a Fire Escape."

Flowers strewn upon the water. Preceding the exercises in the riding hall at Fort Myer the District fireboat, firefrighter, serving as a flower boat, proceeded up the Potomac to Aqueduct bridge, bearing members of the District of Columbia Naval Militia and a flower committee composed of members of the executive committee of the United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliary.

At 2 o'clock the boat steamed down the river, while the members of the committee strewn flowers upon the water in honor of the memory of those Maine sailors whose bodies were not recovered. The committee was composed of the following: Miss Belva Blanch Laughlin, chairman; Misses Freta K. Jewell, Orville H. Dorey, Walton, Madeline Carr, Edna Greenwell, Lydia Meisel, Frances Gutelius, Albert Nichols and Helen Knox.

The flag that was flown at the peak of the flower boat was one that was carried by a ship of Admiral Farragut's fleet at the battle of Mobile Bay.

Program of Exercises.
A short address by Col. McElroy, in which he described the event in memory of which the services were held, was followed by the reading of a memorial address of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary of Cuba to the United States.

Not to be overlooked in the program was the reading of the letter of the destruction of the Maine and touched briefly on the epoch-making events which followed the sinking of the battleship. The letter was read by the Cuban minister, speaking as the direct representative of the Cuban government.

Tribute to Martyr Dead.
Department Commander H. C. Wilson, United Spanish War Veterans, addressed the audience that so long as comrades of the Spanish war survive the martyred heroes of the Maine will be remembered.

"The day we here commemorate," he said, "is one that marked an epoch in the history of our land and in the history of the world. The memories we now recall are those of heroes fallen; the memories we now cherish are those of a nation's debt to the memory of the men who went down with the United States battleship, Maine, on the night of February 15, 1898, as these exercises held."

Plea for National Defense.
In the principal address of the day Representative Julius Kahn of California voiced a plea for preparedness for war as the surest means of insuring peace.

"A nation, after all, is but a mighty aggregation of individuals," he declared, "and all the failings, all the shortcomings, all the mistakes of the individual are simply multiplied and accentuated in the national life."

AMONG THE CLUBS

SHORT STORY CLUB.

The W. C. T. U. parlors were taxed to capacity last Tuesday evening when the program of the Short Story Club, in charge of Judge Dow McLean, was especially good.

J. L. Money gave the story of the evening, depicting the disillusion which only a financial success brings "At the End of the Road."

Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, in chapter No. 3 of the club's serial story, added to the complications of the plot; and the recording secretary, Mrs. Metcalf, sketched the comical side of a Washington woman's experience with the typical "expert" workman in his "Hanging of a Fire Escape."

Flowers strewn upon the water. Preceding the exercises in the riding hall at Fort Myer the District fireboat, firefrighter, serving as a flower boat, proceeded up the Potomac to Aqueduct bridge, bearing members of the District of Columbia Naval Militia and a flower committee composed of members of the executive committee of the United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliary.

At 2 o'clock the boat steamed down the river, while the members of the committee strewn flowers upon the water in honor of the memory of those Maine sailors whose bodies were not recovered. The committee was composed of the following: Miss Belva Blanch Laughlin, chairman; Misses Freta K. Jewell, Orville H. Dorey, Walton, Madeline Carr, Edna Greenwell, Lydia Meisel, Frances Gutelius, Albert Nichols and Helen Knox.

The flag that was flown at the peak of the flower boat was one that was carried by a ship of Admiral Farragut's fleet at the battle of Mobile Bay.

Program of Exercises.
A short address by Col. McElroy, in which he described the event in memory of which the services were held, was followed by the reading of a memorial address of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary of Cuba to the United States.

Not to be overlooked in the program was the reading of the letter of the destruction of the Maine and touched briefly on the epoch-making events which followed the sinking of the battleship. The letter was read by the Cuban minister, speaking as the direct representative of the Cuban government.

Tribute to Martyr Dead.
Department Commander H. C. Wilson, United Spanish War Veterans, addressed the audience that so long as comrades of the Spanish war survive the martyred heroes of the Maine will be remembered.

"The day we here commemorate," he said, "is one that marked an epoch in the history of our land and in the history of the world. The memories we now recall are those of heroes fallen; the memories we now cherish are those of a nation's debt to the memory of the men who went down with the United States battleship, Maine, on the night of February 15, 1898, as these exercises held."

Plea for National Defense.
In the principal address of the day Representative Julius Kahn of California voiced a plea for preparedness for war as the surest means of insuring peace.

"A nation, after all, is but a mighty aggregation of individuals," he declared, "and all the failings, all the shortcomings, all the mistakes of the individual are simply multiplied and accentuated in the national life."

AMONG THE CLUBS

SHORT STORY CLUB.

The W. C. T. U. parlors were taxed to capacity last Tuesday evening when the program of the Short Story Club, in charge of Judge Dow McLean, was especially good.

J. L. Money gave the story of the evening, depicting the disillusion which only a financial success brings "At the End of the Road."

Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, in chapter No. 3 of the club's serial story, added to the complications of the plot; and the recording secretary, Mrs. Metcalf, sketched the comical side of a Washington woman's experience with the typical "expert" workman in his "Hanging of a Fire Escape."

Flowers strewn upon the water. Preceding the exercises in the riding hall at Fort Myer the District fireboat, firefrighter, serving as a flower boat, proceeded up the Potomac to Aqueduct bridge, bearing members of the District of Columbia Naval Militia and a flower committee composed of members of the executive committee of the United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliary.

At 2 o'clock the boat steamed down the river, while the members of the committee strewn flowers upon the water in honor of the memory of those Maine sailors whose bodies were not recovered. The committee was composed of the following: Miss Belva Blanch Laughlin, chairman; Misses Freta K. Jewell, Orville H. Dorey, Walton, Madeline Carr, Edna Greenwell, Lydia Meisel, Frances Gutelius, Albert Nichols and Helen Knox.

The flag that was flown at the peak of the flower boat was one that was carried by a ship of Admiral Farragut's fleet at the battle of Mobile Bay.

Program of Exercises.
A short address by Col. McElroy, in which he described the event in memory of which the services were held, was followed by the reading of a memorial address of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary of Cuba to the United States.

Not to be overlooked in the program was the reading of the letter of the destruction of the Maine and touched briefly on the epoch-making events which followed the sinking of the battleship. The letter was read by the Cuban minister, speaking as the direct representative of the Cuban government.

Tribute to Martyr Dead.
Department Commander H. C. Wilson, United Spanish War Veterans, addressed the audience that so long as comrades of the Spanish war survive the martyred heroes of the Maine will be remembered.

"The day we here commemorate," he said, "is one that marked an epoch in the history of our land and in the history of the world. The memories we now recall are those of heroes fallen; the memories we now cherish are those of a nation's debt to the memory of the men who went down with the United States battleship, Maine, on the night of February 15, 1898, as these exercises held."

Plea for National Defense.
In the principal address of the day Representative Julius Kahn of California voiced a plea for preparedness for war as the surest means of insuring peace.

"A nation, after all, is but a mighty aggregation of individuals," he declared, "and all the failings, all the shortcomings, all the mistakes of the individual are simply multiplied and accentuated in the national life."

AMONG THE CLUBS

SHORT STORY CLUB.

The W. C. T. U. parlors were taxed to capacity last Tuesday evening when the program of the Short Story Club, in charge of Judge Dow McLean, was especially good.

J. L. Money gave the story of the evening, depicting the disillusion which only a financial success brings "At the End of the Road."

Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, in chapter No. 3 of the club's serial story, added to the complications of the plot; and the recording secretary, Mrs. Metcalf, sketched the comical side of a Washington woman's experience with the typical "expert" workman in his "Hanging of a Fire Escape."

Flowers strewn upon the water. Preceding the exercises in the riding hall at Fort Myer the District fireboat, firefrighter, serving as a flower boat, proceeded up the Potomac to Aqueduct bridge, bearing members of the District of Columbia Naval Militia and a flower committee composed of members of the executive committee of the United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliary.

At 2 o'clock the boat steamed down the river, while the members of the committee strewn flowers upon the water in honor of the memory of those Maine sailors whose bodies were not recovered. The committee was composed of the following: Miss Belva Blanch Laughlin, chairman; Misses Freta K. Jewell, Orville H. Dorey, Walton, Madeline Carr, Edna Greenwell, Lydia Meisel, Frances Gutelius, Albert Nichols and Helen Knox.

The flag that was flown at the peak of the flower boat was one that was carried by a ship of Admiral Farragut's fleet at the battle of Mobile Bay.

Program of Exercises.
A short address by Col. McElroy, in which he described the event in memory of which the services were held, was followed by the reading of a memorial address of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary of Cuba to the United States.

Not to be overlooked in the program was the reading of the letter of the destruction of the Maine and touched briefly on the epoch-making events which followed the sinking of the battleship. The letter was read by the Cuban minister, speaking as the direct representative of the Cuban government.

Tribute to Martyr Dead.
Department Commander H. C. Wilson, United Spanish War Veterans, addressed the audience that so long as comrades of the Spanish war survive the martyred heroes of the Maine will be remembered.

"The day we here commemorate," he said, "is one that marked an epoch in the history of our land and in the history of the world. The memories we now recall are those of heroes fallen; the memories we now cherish are those of a nation's debt to the memory of the men who went down with the United States battleship, Maine, on the night of February 15, 1898, as these exercises held."

Plea for National Defense.
In the principal address of the day Representative Julius Kahn of California voiced a plea for preparedness for war as the surest means of insuring peace.

"A nation, after all, is but a mighty aggregation of individuals," he declared, "and all the failings, all the shortcomings, all the mistakes of the individual are simply multiplied and accentuated in the national life."

AMONG THE CLUBS

SHORT STORY CLUB.

The W. C. T. U. parlors were taxed to capacity last Tuesday evening when the program of the Short Story Club, in charge of Judge Dow McLean, was especially good.

J. L. Money gave the story of the evening, depicting the disillusion which only a financial success brings "At the End of the Road."

Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, in chapter No. 3 of the club's serial story, added to the complications of the plot; and the recording secretary, Mrs. Metcalf, sketched the comical side of a Washington woman's experience with the typical "expert" workman in his "Hanging of a Fire Escape."

Flowers strewn upon the water. Preceding the exercises in the riding hall at Fort Myer the District fireboat, firefrighter, serving as a flower boat, proceeded up the Potomac to Aqueduct bridge, bearing members of the District of Columbia Naval Militia and a flower committee composed of members of the executive committee of the United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliary.

At 2 o'clock the boat steamed down the river, while the members of the committee strewn flowers upon the water in honor of the memory of those Maine sailors whose bodies were not recovered. The committee was composed of the following: Miss Belva Blanch Laughlin, chairman; Misses Freta K. Jewell, Orville H. Dorey, Walton, Madeline Carr, Edna Greenwell, Lydia Meisel, Frances Gutelius, Albert Nichols and Helen Knox.

The flag that was flown at the peak of the flower boat was one that was carried by a ship of Admiral Farragut's fleet at the battle of Mobile Bay.

Program of Exercises.
A short address by Col. McElroy, in which he described the event in memory of which the services were held, was followed by the reading of a memorial address of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary of Cuba to the United States.

Not to be overlooked in the program was the reading of the letter of the destruction of the Maine and touched briefly on the epoch-making events which followed the sinking of the battleship. The letter was read by the Cuban minister, speaking as the direct representative of the Cuban government.

Tribute to Martyr Dead.
Department Commander H. C. Wilson, United Spanish War Veterans, addressed the audience that so long as comrades of the Spanish war survive the martyred heroes of the Maine will be remembered.

"The day we here commemorate," he said, "is one that marked an epoch in the history of our land and in the history of the world. The memories we now recall are those of heroes fallen; the memories we now cherish are those of a nation's debt to the memory of the men who went down with the United States battleship, Maine, on the night of February 15, 1898, as these exercises held."

Plea for National Defense.
In the principal address of the day Representative Julius Kahn of California voiced a plea for preparedness for war as the surest means of insuring peace.

"A nation, after all, is but a mighty aggregation of individuals," he declared, "and all the failings, all the shortcomings, all the mistakes of the individual are simply multiplied and accentuated in the national life."

AMONG THE CLUBS

SHORT STORY CLUB.

The W. C. T. U. parlors were taxed to capacity last Tuesday evening when the program of the Short Story Club, in charge of Judge Dow McLean, was especially good.

J. L. Money gave the story of the evening, depicting the disillusion which only a financial success brings "At the End of the Road."

Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, in chapter No. 3 of the club's serial story, added to the complications of the plot; and the recording secretary, Mrs. Metcalf, sketched the comical side of a Washington woman's experience with the typical "expert" workman in his "Hanging of a Fire Escape."

Flowers strewn upon the water. Preceding the exercises in the riding hall at Fort Myer the District fireboat, firefrighter, serving as a flower boat, proceeded up the Potomac to Aqueduct bridge, bearing members of the District of Columbia Naval Militia and a flower committee composed of members of the executive committee of the United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliary.

At 2 o'clock the boat steamed down the river, while the members of the committee strewn flowers upon the water in honor of the memory of those Maine sailors whose bodies were not recovered. The committee was composed of the following: Miss Belva Blanch Laughlin, chairman; Misses Freta K. Jewell, Orville H. Dorey, Walton, Madeline Carr, Edna Greenwell, Lydia Meisel, Frances Gutelius, Albert Nichols and Helen Knox.

The flag that was flown at the peak of the flower boat was one that was carried by a ship of Admiral Farragut's fleet at the battle of Mobile Bay.

Program of Exercises.
A short address by Col. McElroy, in which he described the event in memory of which the services were held, was followed by the reading of a memorial address of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary of Cuba to the United States.

Not to be overlooked in the program was the reading of the letter of the destruction of the Maine and touched briefly on the epoch-making events which followed the sinking of the battleship. The letter was read by the Cuban minister, speaking as the direct representative of the Cuban government.

Tribute to Martyr Dead.
Department Commander H. C. Wilson, United Spanish War Veterans, addressed the audience that so long as comrades of the Spanish war survive the martyred heroes of the Maine will be remembered.

"The day we here commemorate," he said, "is one that marked an epoch in the history of our land and in the history of the world. The memories we now recall are those of heroes fallen; the memories we now cherish are those of a nation's debt to the memory of the men who went down with the United States battleship, Maine, on the night of February 15, 1898, as these exercises held."

Plea for National Defense.
In the principal address of the day Representative Julius Kahn of California voiced a plea for preparedness for war as the surest means of insuring peace.

"A nation, after all, is but a mighty aggregation of individuals," he declared, "and all the failings, all the shortcomings, all the mistakes of the individual are simply multiplied and accentuated in the national life."

Visit our Furniture Department, across the street.

All Special Sales Advertised for Today Continued Tuesday

STORE HOURS: Open 8:45 a.m.; Close 5:30 p.m.

98c Kimonos

Reduced to 74c

Women's Fine Quality Flannel-kimonos, soft, smooth finish, in Persian stripes and floral patterns; dark and medium colors; made empire style, with saaten trimmings; full cut and neatly finished.

Nearly all sizes at 74c. Third Floor.

75c Alarm Clocks

With This Coupon... 49c

THIS COUPON and 49c for Nickel-plated Alarm Clock, with clear dial and brass works. An excellent time keeper—each one guaranteed to give satisfaction. Basement.

Goldenberg's

"IT PAYS TO DEAL AT GOLDENBERG'S"

SEVENTH AND K "THE DEPENDABLE STORE"

25c Gold-front Pin Sets, 12c

Gold-front Collar Pin Sets (three in set); dainty hand-engraved designs, guaranteed to wear. Tomorrow at 12c for three-piece set. Jewelry Dept.

Final Out-Clearing of Our Entire Remaining Stock of Women's Suits and Coats

Now comes the final clearance of women's winter apparel—with prices marked at the lowest level to effect a quick, absolute disposal of every remaining tailored suit and coat in our stock.

Hundreds of smart, stylish garments have been grouped in two big lots and marked at a fraction of former selling prices—you can come tomorrow and pick out any suit or coat that sold up to $20.00 and $25.00 at $3.98 or $6.98. All are this season's styles, and the assortment of materials and colors provides a wide range of choice certain to meet the requirements of every woman.

$3.98

For Coats and Suits Sold Up to $20

Fox Trot Suits
Serge Suits
Boucle Suits
Cheviot Suits
Poplin Suits
Diagonal Suits

Astrakhan Coats
Novelty Boucle Coats
Striped Chinchilla Coats
Zibeline Coats
Mottelasse Coats

$6.98

For Coats and Suits Sold Up to $25

Fur-trimmed Suits
Broadcloth Suits
Poplin Suits
Gardienne Suits
Crepe Cheviot Suits
Chiffon Broadcloth Coats

French Serge Suits
Fur-trimmed Coats
Box Boucle Coats
Astrakhan Coats
Camel's Hair Coats

All sizes—all leading shades as well as navy blue and black.

No Exchanges No Refunds No C. O. D.'s No Approvals

IMPORTER'S SURPLUS LOTS OF EMBROIDERIES

Brand New Spring and Summer Styles at Savings of One-third to One-half Regular Prices

This sale doesn't find a comparison in any you've attended. We have never been able to offer such tremendous values, such attractive styles, such a variety of choice lots, or quote such amazing low prices for Embroideries of similar high quality and beauty. Tomorrow's offering comprises thousands of yards of the finest quality Embroideries turned out by the looms of St. Gall, Switzerland—the entire surplus stock of a prominent importer we secured at big price concessions. The lots include every sort of embroidery required for spring and summer dressmaking needs, and the styles are the newest and handsomest ever gathered in a special sale.

EMBROIDERIES	45-INCH FLOUNCINGS	CREPE FLOUNCINGS
Worth up to 29c At a yard... 12 1/2c	Values Worth up to $2 a yard, at... 59c	Qualities Sold Regularly at 50c yard... 29c
Fine Quality Swiss, Nainsook and Cambric Embroideries, in Edges, Insertions, Gallions, Readings, 18-in. Corset Cover Embroideries and Flowering. Wide range of beautiful patterns, including blind and open work patterns, also embroidered batiste flouncings; with baby Irish edge.	Pineat Quality Imported Voile Flouncings, 45 inches wide; heavily embroidered on sheer quality tulle, in scores of new and exquisite blind and open work patterns, also embroidered batiste flouncings; with baby Irish edge.	27-inch Crepe Embroidered Flouncings, in a large assortment of beautiful raised designs; also 27-inch and 45-inch Swiss Embroidery Flouncings, showing all the newest and choicest patterns for spring and summer, 1915. Wonderful values at 29c a yard.

10c Milk, 6 1/2c Can	10c Soup, 7c	10c Corn, 6c	15c Talcum, 9c	10c Hair Nets, 5c	Basting Cotton
THIS COUPON and 12c for TWO regular 10c cans of Van Camp's Evaporated Milk. (S)	THIS COUPON and 7c for regular 10c can of Campbell's Tomato Soup. (S)	THIS COUPON and 6c for regular 10c can of Sugar Corn, sound, perfect quality. (S)	THIS COUPON and 9c for 15c can of Woodworth's "Blue Lilies" Talcum, with "Blue Lilies" face cream, 15c. (S)	THIS COUPON and 5c for regular 10c Silk Hair Net, large size, all shades. (S)	THIS COUPON and 5c for FOUR spools of White Basting Cotton, 3000 yards each. Regularly, 2 for 5c. (S)

36-inch Colored Chiffon Taffeta Silk... 69c	36-inch Black Messaline Silk, worth $1.00 yard... 68c	40-inch Box Loom-Crepe de Chine... 98c	36-inch Colored Silk Faille, worth $1.00 yard... 68c	24 and 27 Inch Shadow Lace Flouncings... 49c	36-inch Shadow All-over Laces, worth $1.00 yard... 48c	Cluny Lace Edgings, worth 8c and 10c yard... 5c	22-inch Swiss All-over Embroidery, worth $1.00 yd. 49c	Swiss and Cambric Embroideries, worth 10c yard... 5c	45-inch Swiss Embroidery Flouncings, values worth 75c and 89c... 49c	18-inch Oriental Lace Flouncings, regularly 39c yd. 25c	Swiss, Nainsook and Cambric Embroideries... 12 1/2c	27-inch Crepe Embroidered Flouncings... 29c	45-inch Imported Voile Flouncings... 59c	Women's 50c, 75c and $1.00 Gloves... 29c	$7.00 Felt Mattresses, all sizes... $3.69	Wool and Fiber Rugs, size 9x12 ft... $3.45	25c and 29c New Spring White Fabrics... 12 1/2c	25c White Flaxon, 36 inches wide... 12 1/2c	23c Imported White Rep, 36 inches wide... 18c	15c White French Voile, 40 inches wide... 16c	15c White Cannon Cloth, 34 inches wide... 9 1/2c	No. 200 English Longcloth, 36 inches wide... 85c	15c White Pajama Checks, 36 inches wide... 9 1/2c	35c China Mattings, 116-warp grade... 19c	22 1/2c Seamless China Mattings... 15c	15c Seamless China Mattings... 9 1/2c	Odd lots of Stationery, worth 25c pound... 12 1/2c	Envelopes to match, worth 10c package... 5c	Men's 50c and 75c Neglige Shirts... 39c	Women's 25c and 35c Burson Stockings, seconds... 12 1/2c	Women's Pure Silk Stockings, worth $1.00 pair... 59c	Infants' Lisle Stockings, worth 25c pair... 8 1/2c	C. B. Corsets, regular $1.00 model... 69c	40-inch Imported Black Beau de Cygne... 89c	40-inch Imported Crepe Meteor... $1.49	32-inch Stripe Silk Pongee, worth $1.00 yard... 75c	Stamped Guest Towels, worth 25c and 39c each... 19c	29c Hemstitched and Stamped Pillowcases, each... 19c
---	--	--	---	--	---	---	---	--	--	---	---	---	--	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	--	--	---	---	--	---------------------------------------	--	---	---	--	---	--	--	---	---	--	---	--

Good Furniture Never So Low Priced

As in Our February Sale, Which Offers Savings of 25 to 50 Per Cent, With the Privilege of Buying on Our Club Plan of Easy Payments.

This $4.85 Dining Chair, $2.48	$29.85 Buffet $17.85	This $18.50 Toilet Table $10.85	This $25.50 Kitchen Cabinet $13.85	This $4 Telephone Stand and Seat $1.89
----------------------------------	------------------------	-----------------------------------	--------------------------------------	--